PERSONAL STATEMENT

Since 1989, I've served the greater Cleveland community. I am grateful for my grounding at Case Western Reserve University, The Ohio State University Medical School, and my residency training. And, I am indebted to my colleagues in homeopathy, naturopathy, acupuncture, applied kinesiology, and IV therapies and nutrition, for it is they who enable my focusing of that educational grounding to better serve my patients and community holistically.

In my view, we are intricately connected to the Earth, Sky and all things between. We come from the soil. Food sustains us and maintains our health. I support the slow food movement and am a member of the Geauga Family Farms Co-op and Geauga County Bee Keepers Association.

It'll probably take all of the 21st century to repair our damaged environment, restore balance and usher in sustainability. My associate and I are driven at this forefront. To that effect, we develop community outreach and innovations such as the Detox with the Docs program, a 21-day cleansing and rejuvenation program, in which we coach and participate in a spring and fall detoxification program utilizing local markets to introduce and promote the Organic lifestyle throughout the process. Just as I am honored to serve my patients and community, I also work with our profession via groups such as International College of Integrative Medicine (ICIM) where I serve on the board to facilitate other health providers learning about the latest scientific evidence emerging in integrative practices from around the world.
